2. What is a cookie?

A cookie is a small file containing various letters and numbers sent by a webserver and recorded and stored for a pre-determined period on the user's device (computer, mobile, tablet, smart TV etc.). These are such IT data helping the use of the websites - that the web server sends to the user's browser, is stored on the user's device, and then the browser sends it back to the server each time it requests data from the web server. They do not contain executable files, viruses, spyware, and cannot access data on the user's hard drive.

Cookies usually contain the following: the domain name of the page the user is visiting (i.e. the access address entered in your browser), the storage period of the cookie, and the information stored. The cookie enables, among other things, the recognition of the user's device and browser, thus facilitating the appearance of content tailored to the needs of the visitor and the basic browsing functions (e.g. providing connected sessions). In addition to user anonymity, they also support the preparation of statistics on frequency of visits.

However, if at some point in the future you contact us - with your express consent - by filling out a form on a website where we use cookies, we may use these cookies to find out the details of your website visits after the form was submitted. This is done to enhance user experience.

When you accept the cookie policy on our website, the cookie policy will not reappear again until you delete the cookies in your browser settings (see Section 7 for cookie management details).

If you share any content of euro-matic.eu on the social media (e.g. Facebook, Youtube, Instagram), you may receive additional cookies from these websites. These cookies are not operated by euro-matic.eu, so we highly recommend that you visit these third-party websites for more information about them and their management.

3. Categories of cookies used on the site

3.1. Functional and strictly necessary cookies

These cookies are essential for users to browse our website and use its features and services. When you close your browser, these cookies are going to be automatically deleted from your computer. Without these cookies, we cannot guarantee you that you will be able to use our website. Functional cookies are used to remember actions performed on the website (e.g. selected language, login details).

3.2. Performance cookies

We use these cookies, among other things, to keep track of which pages our visitors visit, how and how often they use our pages, and how long they have been on a particular page. We also use third-party cookies from our advertising partners to measure the success of our campaigns.

3.3. Targeting and marketing cookies

The purpose of these cookies is to deliver adverts and contents more relevant to you and your interests by creating user groups. This process is done by manual intervention. These cookies are stored on your computer. These cookies are not capable to identify individuals. In order to deliver our personalized adverts to you we use remarketing services.
